Product Description

Meteobridge Software License Meteobridge is a software that connects your personal weather station to public weather networks like "Weather Underground". This allows you to feed your micro climate data to a weather network on the Internet and make it available from wherever you are. All you need is Internet access to reach the weather networks's web pages, where you can inspect your current and historical data. In addition, you can share your weather data with friends and you are actively participating in a large network of weather enthusiasts, who also share their weather observations with you.
